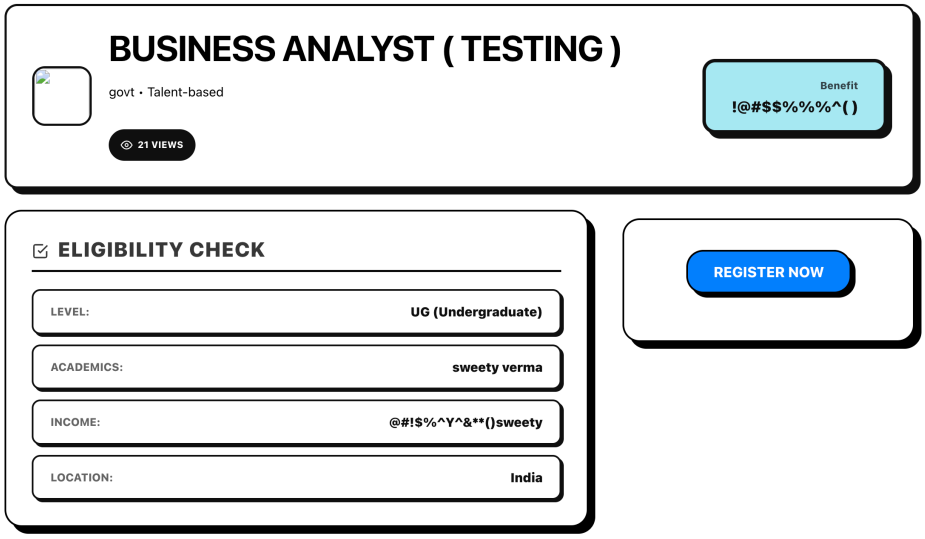
Issue 1 - A test listing is live on the public Scholarships page

URL - https://evepaper.com/scholarships/business-analyst-testing-3/

Path - Homepage – Scholarships - Listing page - Card: business analyst (testing)



What I observed –

There is a scholarship card on the main listing page titled 'business analyst (testing)' — lowercase, with brackets. When I opened it, the Benefit field showed '!@#$$%%%^( )' and the Eligibility fields had a person's name and random characters like '@#!$%^Y^&()sweety'. The thumbnail was not even an image — it was an Excel file (HR_RawData.xlsx) that was uploaded in place of a cover photo.

This is clearly a test entry that was used to check how the publish form works and was never taken down. It is sitting right alongside real listings from government bodies and reputed foundations, which looks very bad for any student who opens the page.

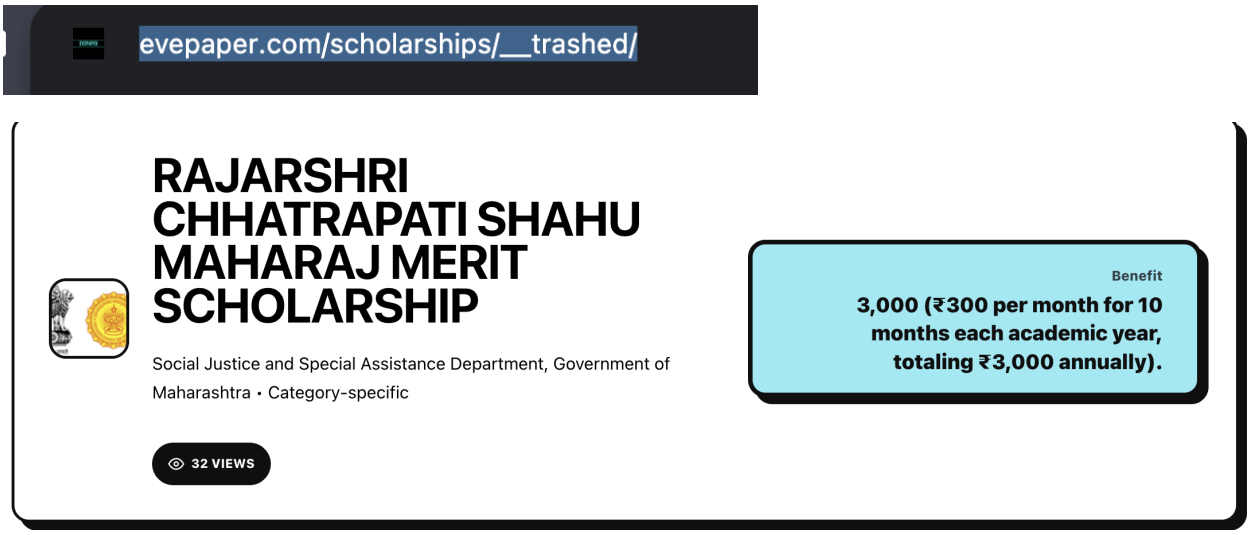
Suggestion –

This listing should be deleted or unpublished immediately. Going forward, test submissions should be done on a staging or demo environment, not on the live website. An admin review step before any listing goes public would also prevent this from happening again.

Issue 2 – Scholarship card links to a URL with '__trashed' in it

URL – https://evepaper.com/scholarships/__trashed/

Path – Homepage – Scholarships – Listing page – Card: Rajarshri Chhatrapati Shahu Maharaj Merit Scholarship



What I observed –

I clicked on the card for the Rajarshri Chhatrapati Shahu Maharaj Merit Scholarship and noticed the URL in my browser address bar was 'evepaper.com/scholarships/__trashed/'. The page did load and content was visible, but that URL looks broken and unfinished. '__trashed' is actually a WordPress internal term — it gets set when a post is moved to trash and then restored without fixing the slug. A real user seeing this URL would likely think the page is broken or the scholarship no longer exists. Also, the listing labels itself as 'Full Tuition' in the benefits section, but the actual benefit is only Rs. 3,000 per year (Rs. 300 per month). That does not qualify as full tuition by any measure.

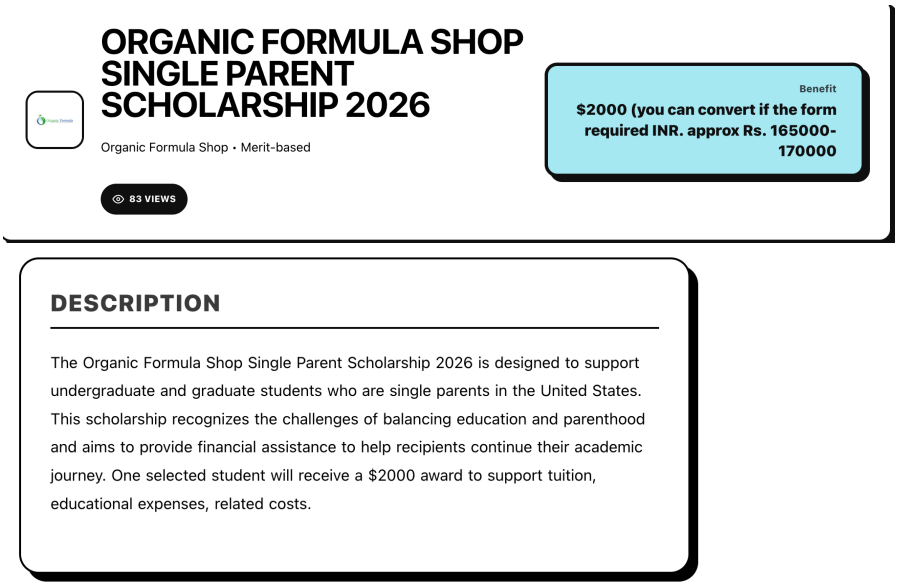
Suggestion –

The URL slug should be corrected to something like 'rajarshri-chhatrapati-shahu-maharaj-scholarship' and a redirect should be set from the old URL. The benefit type label should also be changed from 'Full Tuition' to 'Financial Assistance' or 'Partial Support' to match what the scholarship actually provides.

Issue 3 – US-only scholarship listed under 'India' with a note about currency conversion in the benefit field

URL - https://evepaper.com/scholarships/organic-formula-shop-single-parent-scholarship-2026/

Path – Homepage – Scholarships – Listing page – Card: Organic Formula Shop Single Parent Scholarship 2026



What I observed –

When I opened this listing, the description clearly states it is for students in the United States — it says 'undergraduate and graduate students who are single parents in the United States'. But the Location field on the card shows 'India', and the listing appears in the general India scholarships feed. The Benefit field on the listing card also reads: '$2000 (you can convert if the form required INR. approx Rs. 165000-170000' — this is a raw personal note that was copy-pasted into the benefit field. It looks unpolished and reads like internal notes, not a proper listing meant for students to read.

Suggestion –

The location should be corrected to 'United States' or the listing should be tagged appropriately so it does not appear to Indian students who cannot apply. The benefit field should simply say '$2,000 (USD)' — any internal currency conversion notes should not be visible to end users.

Issue 4 – No search, filter, or sort option on the Scholarships listing page

URL – https://evepaper.com/scholarships/

What I observed –

When you land on the scholarships page, all listings are just stacked one after another under a single heading that says 'Trending'. There is no search bar, no filter, and no sort option anywhere on the page. I tried looking for a way to filter by education level — say, show only UG scholarships — but there is nothing. Same with deadline (which ones are closing soon?), scholarship type (merit-based vs need-based), or benefit type. Every card already shows these tags — UG/PG/PhD, Merit-based, deadline date — so the data is clearly there, it just cannot be used to narrow down results. Right now there are 17 listings and scrolling through is manageable, but as more scholarships get added, a student looking specifically for a need-based UG scholarship closing this month would have no way to find it without reading every single card. For a platform that says it powers opportunities for 10M+ youth, having no filter on a scholarship listing page is a significant usability gap.

Suggestion –

At minimum, the page should have filter options for Education Level (School / UG / PG / PhD / All Levels), Scholarship Type (Merit / Need / Talent / Category), and Deadline (sort by nearest first). A search bar to look up by keyword or organisation name would also help. The tags already on each card show that this data exists — it just needs to be made filterable
